OFFICIAL LIST OF THE BIRDS OF TENNESSEE

Updated: November 2026

The Official List of the Birds of Tennessee is compiled by the Tennessee Bird Records Committee. The sequence and nomenclature follow the American Ornithological Society's (AOS) Check-list of North and Middle American Birds.

The checklist includes 437 species that have been recorded in the state of Tennessee and are deemed to be naturally occurring, established, or introduced species. Each species is assigned a status code according to the recent relative frequency with which it is recorded in the state. These status codes are defined as follows:

Regular – expected to occur every year in appropriate season and habitat; generally, the species has been recorded in either 9 of the past 10 years, or greater than 30 records in the past 10 years.

Casual – occurs with some frequency but not every year; generally, the species has been recorded 4 or more times in the past 10 years (but does not meet standard for Regular).

Accidental – very rare and unpredictable vagrant; the species has been recorded 3 or fewer times in the past 10 years.

Extirpated – no longer occurs within the state;

eXtinct – no longer occurs anywhere; and

Provisional – less than 3 accepted records within the state without photographs or a specimen.

 - designates breeding records within the state.

All species indicated in the "Review Species" column require TBRC review, in addition to any undocumented species not otherwise on this list. A Rare Bird Documentation Form can be found here: https://tnbirds.org/tbrc-form/

Aberrant birds such as albino or leucistic individuals are always interesting, but they do not require review. The committee does request review of unexpected subspecies in Tennessee (not notated below).
